Headline:
Cloudy and breezy, mild throughout.

Today:
Largely cloudy and remaining mild. Mainly dry, though the odd spot of drizzle is possible over high ground in the far west. Breezy inland and windy along the coasts with continued strong gusts. Maximum temperature 17 deg C (63 deg F).

Tonight:
Remaining cloudy and largely dry overnight though there will be the odd clearer spell at times. A mild night with a moderate to fresh breeze. Minimum temperature 13 deg C (55 deg F).

Thursday:
A dry but mainly cloudy day for most though rain, that could be heavy at times, will start to push into the far northwest of Cornwall and Devon. Maximum temperature 17 deg C (63 deg F).

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Remaining breezy with outbreaks of rain to end the week, persistent and heavier at times on Friday. Feeling fresher but with further outbreaks of rain on Saturday and Sunday.
